I. SUMMARY OF PROCEEDINGS

On November 5, 2010, Defendant filed a "Motion for Relief under 28 U.S.C. § 2255 to Vacate, Set Aside, or Correct Sentence by a Person in Federal Custody." ("Mot.") On April 18, 2011, the Government filed Opposition to Defendant's Motion ("Opp'n"), accompanied by various exhibits contained in its Excerpts of Record ("EOR"). On May 20, 2011, Defendant filed a Response ("Resp.") to the Opposition. (The Response was filed in EDCR 03-0084 VAP, not the instant case.)

II. BACKGROUND

On June 3, 2004, a federal grand jury in this district returned a nine count first superseding indictment charging Defendant and 32 others with conspiracy to manufacture, to aid and abet the manufacture of, to possess with intent to distribute, and distribute, more than 100 grams of phencyclidine ("PCP"), in violation of 21 U.S.C. §§ 841(a)(1), 841(b)(1)(A), 841(c)(2), 846 and 18 U.S.C. §2. (Doc. No.<sup>1</sup> 448.) On July 5, 2005, the government filed an information charging that, on or about May 14, 1985, in California Superior Court, Los Angeles County, Defendant had been convicted of possession of PCP for sale, in violation of Calif. Health and Safety Code § 11378.5, and on or about October 24, 2000, in California Superior Court, San Bernardino County, he had been convicted of manufacturing a controlled substance in violation of Calif. Health and Safety Code § 11379.6, both prior felony drug convictions within the meaning of 21 U.S.C. §§ 841, 851. (Doc. No. 928.)

Following a ten day trial, a jury convicted Defendant on July 28, 2005, on Count One of the First Superseding Indictment, and found he was responsible for 175 kilograms of a mixture or substance containing PCP. (Doc. Nos. 1001, 1004.) On December 5, 2005, Defendant

1 admitted the allegations in the § 851 information. (Doc.
2 No. 1133.) The Court sentenced Defendant to a life term 3 of imprisonment, and imposed five years of supervised 4 release and a mandatory special assessment of $100.00.
5 (Doc. No. 1193 (Judgment & Commitment Order).)

6
7 Defendant appealed his conviction and sentence to the 8 Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals; the Circuit Court
9 affirmed his conviction and sentence on November 6, 2009.
10 (Doc. No. 1573.)

11 12 III. DISCUSSION

13 Defendant asserts he was denied his right under the 14 Sixth Amendment to the United States Constitution to the 15 effective assistance of trial counsel, on the following 16 bases:

17 (1) his lawyer "failed to challenge the special 18 verdict form and prove the elements of conspiracy on 19 the indictment beyond a reasonable doubt" (Mot. at 20 4);

21 (2) his lawyer failed to advise him of the 22 consequences of his admission to the § 851
23 information, i.e., a mandatory sentence of life
24 imprisonment (Mot. at 9-14);

25 (3) his lawyer failed to cross-examine witnesses
26 other than Special Agent Starkey and co-defendant Kim 27 Stinson regarding the agent's interview with Stinson 28 (Mot. at 14-28); and

1 (4) his lawyer failed to object to the jury
2 instructions regarding the law of conspiracy (Mot. at 3 28-29).

4
5 To establish ineffective assistance of counsel, 6 Defendant must prove (1) "counsel's representation fell 7 below an objective standard of reasonableness," and (2) 8 there is a reasonable probability that, but for counsel's 9 errors, the result of the proceeding would have been 10 different. Strickland v. Washington, 466 U.S. 668, 688, 11 694 (1984). "A reasonable probability is a probability 12 sufficient to undermine confidence in the outcome." Id.
13 at 694. Under the second component, Defendant must 14 demonstrate his attorney's errors rendered the result 15 unreliable or the proceedings fundamentally unfair.
16 Fretwell v. Lockhart, 506 U.S. 364, 372 (1993);
17 Strickland v. Washington, 466 U.S. at 694.

18
19 A claim of ineffective assistance of counsel requires 20 proof of both of these elements. "[A] court need not 21 determine whether counsel's performance was deficient 22 before examining the prejudice suffered by the 23 defendant.... If it is easier to dispose of an 24 ineffectiveness claim on the ground of lack of sufficient 25 prejudice ... that course should be followed."
26 Strickland v. Washington, 466 U.S. at 697.

A. Failure to Object to the Special Verdict Form and the Jury Instructions on the Law of Conspiracy

The Court instructed the jury on the elements of the crime of conspiracy with Ninth Circuit Model Instruction No. 8.16, modified to reflect the date the alleged conspiracy ended, and with the Pinkerton<sup>2</sup> instruction, Ninth Circuit Model Instruction No. 8.20. (EOR at 122-125A.) The Court also instructed the jury that as to any defendant it found guilty, it was to complete a special verdict form with a finding regarding the amount of PCP attributable to the defendant.

In affirming Defendant's conviction on direct appeal, the Ninth Circuit held "[t]he jury instructions, read as a whole, were not misleading or inadequate. . . . The jury was instructed (using Ninth Circuit Model Criminal Jury Instructions 8.16 and 8.20<sup>3</sup>) regarding the elements of the crime for which Williams was charged: conspiracy." United States v. Reed, 575 F.3d 900, 926 (9th Cir. 2009). Defendant's objection that his counsel erred by failing to seek a separate, special "mere presence" instruction fails because, as the Ninth Circuit noted, that principle was adequately covered in the instructions given. Id.

<sup>3</sup>The Model Criminal Jury Instructions have since been revised, and those instructions are now numbered 8.20 and 8.25, respectively.

1 Thus, Defendant was not prejudiced by the lack of any 2 special instruction on that point.

3
4 Defendant's claim of error regarding foreseeability
5 lacks merit as well. Defendant makes no specific claim 6 regarding the special verdict form, but appears to be 7 asserting that his lawyer was ineffective because the 8 jury found him responsible for 175 kilograms of PCP when 9 it "was never told what jointly undertaken criminal 10 activity to be foreseeable drug quantities whether 11 defendant held accountable for the drug conduct which he 12 was directly involved the entire conspiracy, manufacture, 13 distribution, dispensing of possession with intent to 14 manufacture PCP." (Mot. at 29.)

15
16 In fact, as noted above, the jury was instructed with 17 Model Criminal Instruction No. 8.20, which requires, 18 under a Pinkerton theory of liability for conspiracy, 19 that the government prove beyond a reasonable doubt that 20 "the offense fell within the scope of the unlawful 21 agreement and could reasonably have been foreseen to be a 22 necessary or natural consequence of the unlawful 23 agreement." (Emphasis added.) Thus, this claim fails as 24 Defendant has not satisfied the second prong of 25 Strickland.

26
27 Defendant's Sixth Amendment claim also appears to be 28 based on his trial counsel's failure to object to the use

1 of the disjunctive in the special verdict form, allowing 2 the jury to find the charged him responsible for the 3 charged drug quantity if it was "either within the scope 4 of [his] agreement with his co-conspirators or the 175 5 kilograms was reasonably foreseeable to [him]," (EOR at 6 130-31.)

7 8 The Ninth Circuit rejected Defendant's claim on 9 direct appeal that the special verdict form improperly 10 lowered the burden of proof. It held that under Circuit 11 precedent, the district court when sentencing a defendant 12 convicted of conspiracy to distribute a controlled 13 substance must only find either that the quantity of 14 drugs fell within the scope of the conspiracy or was 15 reasonably foreseeable to the defendant. Reed, 575 F.3d
16 at 927. Thus, Defendant's trial counsel's performance 17 was not objectively unreasonable when she declined to 18 object to a verdict form that conformed to the necessary 19 findings for sentencing.

20
21 Moreover, for purposes of the ineffective assistance 22 of counsel claim here, he is unable to satisfy 23 Strickland's prejudice prong, because his status as a 24 career offender subjected him to a mandatory sentence of 25 life imprisonment regardless of the calculation of the 26 base offense level under the Sentencing Guidelines.
27 Hence, the claim fails for this reason as well.

1 B. Failure to Advise of the Consequences of Admission to 2 the § 851 Information

3 Defendant contends he was denied effective assistance 4 of counsel because his attorney did not advise him that 5 he faced a mandatory sentence of life imprisonment if he 6 admitted the allegations in the § 851 information that he 7 had suffered two prior felony drug convictions. (Mot. at 8 4-11.)

9
10 The Presentence Report prepared by the United States
11 Probation Office was disclosed on November 7, 2005; it 12 specifically stated that the allegations in the § 851
13 information subjected Defendant to a mandatory sentence
14 of life imprisonment. Defendant admitted at the outset 15 of his sentencing hearing that he had read the PSR and 16 discussed it with his attorney.

17
18 On December 5, 2005, Defendant appeared before the 19 Court, and admitted the allegations of the prior felony 20 drug convictions. He confirmed that he had discussed the 21 allegations thoroughly with his lawyer before coming to 22 court, and that he was making the admissions freely, 23 voluntarily and without coercion. (EOR at 134-35.) His 24 lawyer concurred in the admissions. (Id. at 136-37.)
25 "Solemn declarations in open court carry 'a strong 26 presumption of verity.'" Doe v. Woodford, 508 F.3d 563, 27 571 (9th Cir. 2007) (citing Blackledge v. Allison, 431 28

1 U.S. 63, 74 (1977) and Chizen v. Hunter, 809 F.2d 560, 2 562 (9th Cir. 1986).

3
4 Defendant's trial counsel, Darlene Ricker, has 5 submitted a declaration under oath, in which she states 6 that prior to trial "on at least one occasion, I 7 explained to defendant the fact that he faced a potential 8 sentence of life in prison. I spoke with defendant about 9 the possibility of accepting a plea agreement in which he 10 would receive a sentence of less than life in prison. I 11 had discussions with defendant about the facts and 12 circumstances in the case, possible defenses, and the 13 potential sentence in the case. Defendant elected to 14 proceed to trial." (EOR at 24.) Further, she states, 15 "Prior to sentencing, a hearing was conducted as to the 16 allegations of prior drug conviction. Defendant elected 17 to admit the allegations of prior conviction. Although I 18 may have had multiple discussions with defendant, I 19 specifically recall that I explained the effect of 20 admitting the allegations of prior conviction shortly 21 before the admission was taken. At no point did 22 defendant request that I challenge the allegations of 23 prior drug conviction." (Id.)

24
25 In his Reply, Defendant seized on Ms. Ricker's
26 statement that she informed him of the "potential" for a 27 sentence of life imprisonment. (Response at 4-18.) He 28 argues that this amounts to an admission that he was

1 never informed he faced a mandatory life sentence if he 2 admitted the allegations.

3
4 This argument fails because Ms. Ricker's statement, 5 taken in the context of the declaration as a whole, 6 refers to the potential of defendant's conviction. In 7 other words, when discussing the issue with Defendant
8 before trial, Ms. Ricker was discussing a potential 9 sentence because Defendant had not been convicted and was 10 presumed innocent. When discussing the issue with him 11 after trial, and after his conviction on Count One, she 12 states in her declaration, "I specifically recall that I 13 explained the effect of admitting the allegations of 14 prior conviction shortly before the admission was taken."
15 Significantly, the word "potential" is absent from this 16 sentence. Moreover, this is entirely consistent with 17 Defendant's own statement, in Court, that he had 18 discussed the issue with his lawyer thoroughly before
19 making his admissions. Hence, Defendant has not overcome 20 the "strong presumption" that his counsel's performance 21 was within the range expected from reasonably competent 22 counsel. Strickland, 466 U.S. at 688.

23
24 Finally, in his Response, Defendant argues that the 25 government did not respond to an argument in his Motion 26 that his counsel was ineffective because she did not 27 challenge the § 851 allegations despite the age of the 28 prior convictions. (Resp. at 12.) To the extent that

1 such a contention fairly was raised in the Motion,
2 Defendant appears to be asserting that the prior felony 3 convictions alleged in the § 851 information were used 4 improperly to enhance his sentence because they were more
5 than 15 years old. (Resp. at 7-8.)

6
7 Title 21 U.S.C. § 841(b)(1)(A)(iv) provides that a 8 person convicted under § 841(a) for a crime involving the 9 manufacture, distribution, dispensing or possession with 10 the intention to manufacture, distribute or dispense, 100 11 grams or more of PCP, and "after two or more prior 12 convictions for a felony drug offense have become final .
13 . . shall be sentenced to a mandatory term of life
14 imprisonment without release . . . ." The statute sets 15 forth no limit on the age of the prior felony drug 16 convictions. The limits imposed in the United States 17 Sentencing Guidelines, see U.S.S.G. § 4A1.2(e), on the 18 age of prior convictions used in calculating a 19 defendant's criminal history category are irrelevant.
20 Hence, Defendant has not demonstrated that his attorney's 21 failure to challenge the age of the convictions alleged 22 in the § 851 information fell below an "objective 23 standard of reasonableness," nor that he was prejudiced 24 by her failure to mount such a futile challenge.
25 Counsel's performance is not defective for failing to 26 bring futile or frivolous motions. James v. Borg, 24 F.
27 3d 20, 27 (9th Cir. 1994) (counsel's failure to raise a 28

1 futile argument does not constitute ineffective
2 assistance).

3
4 C. Failure to Examine Witnesses Regarding the Notes of 5 Agent Starkey's Interview with Co-Defendant Kim
6 Stinson

7 Finally, Defendant bases his Sixth Amendment claim 8 on his trial counsel's alleged failure (1) to call 9 unspecified "other witnesses" present at the interviews 10 of government witnesses, and (2) to cross-examine 11 adequately the cooperating witnesses and Special Agent 12 Starkey regarding Defendant's participation in the 13 conspiracy. (Mot. at 14-16.)

14
15 During trial, Special Agent Starkey testified that she had 16 destroyed her rough notes of the interviews conducted of 17 cooperating codefendants, once the formal reports
18 commemorating the interviews were prepared. Defendant
19 moved for dismissal of the Government's case following 20 this testimony, on the basis that the Government had 21 violated its obligations under Jencks, (Doc. No. 978); 22 the Court denied the motion and the Ninth Circuit upheld 23 this decision on direct appeal, finding the notes in 24 question was not Jencks material and Defendant's 25 confrontation clause rights had been violated. Reed, 575
26 F.3d at 920-23.

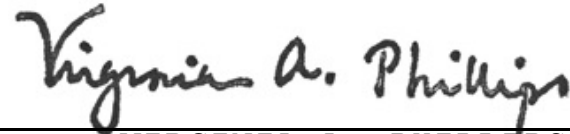

1 Defendant's bare claim regarding unnamed "other 2 witnesses" is facially insufficient to warrant habeas 3 relief. He not only fails to name who his trial counsel 4 could have called to testify on this subject, but fails 5 to state what their testimony would have been, nor does 6 he attach any declaration from a single witness 7 constituting actual proposed testimony. As the 8 Government correctly points out, (Opp'n at 17), bare 9 allegations do not suffice to gain relief under section 10 2255. Rather, Defendant must "present evidence that the 11 [proposed] witness would have provided helpful testimony 12 for the defense, such as an affidavit from the alleged 13 witness." Dows v. Wood, 211 F.3d 480, 486 (9th Cir.
14 2000). Defendant's failure to support his claim 15 adequately dooms his attempt to show his trial counsel's 16 performance in this regard was objectively 17 deficient.

18
19 As to the allegedly faulty cross-examination of Agent 20 Starkey, again Defendant does not specify what was 21 lacking about her cross-examination of the witness at 22 trial. To the extent Defendant is asserting that the 23 absence of the agent's original notes hampered his 24 lawyer's cross-examination, that argument would fail as 25 well; Defendant's rights to Jencks materials was 26 satisfied when the Government turned over the formal 27 reports of the witness interviews to the defense.

1 IV. CONCLUSION

2 Defendant has failed to demonstrate any grounds for 3 relief under 28 U.S.C. § 2255. The Court denies the 4 Motion and orders the action dismissed with prejudice.
